

PRESS RELEASE:

Appealing Offices at Kirtlington

The acclaimed Polo Grounds at Kirtlington have been in use since 1920's, but less well known is the Park Farm Technology Centre standing next to the sports ground and also owned by the Budgett family.

The Technology Centre was developed from converted farm buildings during 1980's, and consists of 7 office and workshop units.

"We have been incredibly fortunate at Park Farm to have many long standing business tenants, and this is the first office that has come available since 2000." Comments owner James Budgett. "Businesses like the fact that it is easy to access the road and rail networks from here and yet they are within this glorious parkland. We are different because we can also offer businesses corporate sporting activities on their doorstep linked to the fishing lakes or to the Polo Ground."

The offices are 969 – 2,143 sq ft, and available to let through Meeson Williams and Carter Jonas.
